GEORGETOWN'S CREW IN ACTIVE TRAINING

Preparing for Big Inter-collegiate Rowing Event.

COACH DEMPSEY IN CHARGE

Make-up of Boat Will Be Definitely Decided Next Week.

NEW BOAT A FINE MODEL

Only Twelve Men From Which to Pick—Substitute Will Be Entered in the Four-Oared Race—Class Crews Getting Ready for Their Event.

If Georgetown University does as well on the water this season as its baseball team has done so far, its representatives will be world-beaters.

With only about three years in the struggle for aquatic honors, it is not expected that the "Blue and Gray" will outstrip its competitors who have had decades of history made in shell boats behind them, but it will make a mighty effort to be near the front when the volume of this season's history is being written.

The material which Georgetown has this season from which to draw a crew is the best, collectively, that has ever tried for seats in the local boats. The candidates, who have been sifted down from some thirty odd to an even dozen, are all young, husky, brainy fellows, anxious to row, and earnest in their work, and with such qualities to start with the chances are there will be something doing at Poughkeepsie in June when Georgetown faces the starter with Pennsylvania, Cornell, Wisconsin, Columbia, and Syracuse, and mayhap before then, for the crew will have a two-mile brush with Naval Academy on May 17.

Pat Dempsey in Charge.

For several weeks Pat Dempsey, the famous oarsman of Philadelphia, the man who went the Vesper to victory at the Paris Exposition, has been whipping the material into shape, and in addition to the earnestness of the men, much depends upon his efforts to coach them into form and speed.

He is quite enthusiastic over the prospects of his charges, although he has not yet finally made up his mind, but he knows enough of the ability of the dozen from among whom the "eight" will come to make him feel hopeful, though not over-anguish over the prospects.

Dempsey has a national reputation as a coach who not only knows the theory but the practice of the art of rowing. He knows how a thing ought to be done, and has the intelligence to impart that knowledge to others—two very important points worthily lacking in the make-up of many so-called coaches, parading and posing themselves in land and water sports.

The work of Dempsey to date has fully justified the action of the management in selecting a professional coach, and if his work is not interfered with he will get good results out of his charges.

Make-Up of the Crew.

It is next to impossible at this writing to definitely state how Dempsey will fill the seats of the "eight," but it is safe to say that the crew and the "subs" will include the following: Kerns, Edmonston, Captain Russell, Rorke, Lynch, Haydon, Mahoney, Seitz, Eagan, Gracie, Snyder, and Joe Kelly.

In addition to the "eight" Georgetown will enter a "four" at Poughkeepsie, and this boat will be composed of the "subs" of the "eight."

Only about half of last year's crew will be in the boat this season, and that makes the task all the more difficult of putting out a winner.

The crew which has been taking stretches regularly the past week, and looks likely to be evenly balanced, holds a boat well on keel and whose in-board as well as its "sweep" work has been clean and prompt, had the following men who sit up well as to weight and readiness.

Doing Daily Stretches.

Dempsey has his men out every day, each afternoon and sometimes in the morning, when classwork allows the absence of the men. No great effort has been made to get any speed out of the men, attention being given almost entirely to perfecting the form inboard. "Teaching the men how to row is the first thing necessary," says Dempsey, "and when they have learned this then comes the practice for speed."

During the past week long, steady, slow pulls have alternated with mile stretches in which, at times, the men have been let out on speed—just to make them feel like they were rowing. They are using the Dempsey or Vesper stroke, rowing about thirty-four, with a slow recovery. They have the "life," but they still need the "heave"—that quality necessary to motion and speed. This will come in time, when the men have actually learned to put their shoulders and backs into the stroke, and give their better catch on the water. The men who have been out regularly are sliding well and are gradually getting the "stops" or "checks" out of the motion when the boat has a "head on" stroke. These are a few things that Dempsey will improve when he has gotten over the worry of deciding as to who is to be "it."

The practice pulls are taken up river, above and below the "Three Sisters," and from there to the flats below the Long Bridge includes the "distance" or grueling pulls, and when the boys get back to the boat they know they have had some work, and woe be it to the man who hasn't turned a hair, for it is the telltale of "mildering." So far there has been no loading, every man is anxious and the college spirit is abroad—all want to be winners this year.

Four Miles Too Long.

With the boat made up of over 50 per cent of new material, the task the boys face before them in the four-mile race at Poughkeepsie is stupendous. The distance is altogether too great for men who lack experience and are not seasoned with a year's rowing. The men are very young, and overexerting themselves doing this distance often leads to permanent injury.

Rowing is the best exercise in the world

The "Eight" Passing the Boathouse. Coach Dempsey in the Coxswain's Seat and Facing Him in Rotation are Kerns, stroke; Edmonston, No. 7; Russell, Captain, No. 6; Rorke, No. 5; Lynch, No. 4; Haydon, No. 3; Mahoney, No. 2; J. Seitz, bow.

when taken moderately, but it is one of the most injurious when body and mind are exerted beyond the limit of the capacity and endurance of the oarsman. It is the opinion of men experienced in the sport that no crew should be put to the test of rowing four miles unless it is the second year at the distance for all the men in the boat.

Two miles, as at Annapolis, would be a better test for speed, experience, and good oarsmanship, and would result in greater benefit to the men. Of course, with more time to practice and greater opportunity to follow the rules of training, the college man is in better position to prepare for long races than his fellow-oarsmen of the boat club whose time for continuous hours is taken up in earning a livelihood.

This is probably the reason why the amateur races controlled by the National Association and its allied associations are limited to a mile or a mile and a half, and because it gives opportunity to a greater number of spectators to see the contest and thus broadens the interest in the sport.

The New Shell.

The new shell for the Poughkeepsie crew arrived last Monday from the makers, J. Glass & Sons, of Philadelphia, and attracted a good deal of attention as it was being carried from the station to the boathouse.

It is a beautiful craft built of Spanish cedar. It is sixty-three feet long, about three feet longer than the usual run of eights, and weighs 245 pounds, rigid and ready for work. It is twenty-three inches beam from gunwale to gunwale, and has a liberal washboarding, enough to make her seaworthy in the choppy water on the Hudson at Poughkeepsie, and is eight and three-quarter inches deep.

Like the Paris Boat.

The boat is an exact duplicate of the one in which the Vesper of Philadelphia, under Dempsey's coaching, won the big event, the world's championship, at the Paris Exposition. The lines are graceful and her formation is clipper and clean cut. She is well braced everywhere, so there can be no parting or bulging at any point. A solid bulkhead faced with iron, following the swelling of the lines, is seen at the end of each seat.

Dempsey has put in the week fitting the boat and bracing her according to his own ideas, and instituting slides for the roller seats which will make easy motion for the oarsmen, and when he gets through, the boat will be as strong and stiff as a shell as ever held a crew. Kerns' nickel oarlocks and bronze roller seats and Donohue oars and movable stretchers, fitted with copper heel shoes, complete the equipment.

Launched Without Formality.

The boat was temporarily fitted with oarlocks the next day after her arrival and launched without formality, and the crew stepped into her to see how she would "wet" in the water, and the inspection was entirely satisfactory. She sat well, carried well, and was most beautifully balanced, and showed her graceful lines as proudly as if a thing of life. The crew is proud of its new boat and expects many things of the pretty craft. The new boat will be put overboard for good next week.

The cuts shown in this issue show the crew which has been having Dempsey's latest attention, and is a very likely one, and will probably, with one or two changes, be the "eight" which will do battle for the Blue and Gray at Annapolis in May and at Poughkeepsie in June.

The Class Crews.

Considerable interest is taken by the student body in the work of the class crew preparing for their race which will probably take place May 15. These crews have been taking practice for about three weeks, and their boats are going through the water in good shape, and showing considerable speed. The struggle for class supremacy on the water promises to be interesting. A number of candidates have tried for seats in the two shells.

The final crews will probably be seated as follows:

Freeman-Redick, stroke; Gibbons, No. 7; Graham, No. 6; Gunther, No. 5; Pennington, No. 4; Ewing, No. 3; Gelpi, No. 2; Henningson, No. 1; Magee, coxswain. Average weight, 145.

Sophomore-Atkinson, stroke; Farrelly, captain, No. 7; Ryan, No. 6; Shepard, No. 5; Grima, No. 4; Connelly, No. 3; Wadden, No. 2; Palma, No. 1; Desmond, coxswain. Average weight, 154.

The League Park has become a great resort for Georgetown College students, and they fairly roll out of their seats with enthusiasm and pride for a little drill swats the leather into safe territory. He is not the only son of Georgetown, however, who has made a deep and glorious mark in the annals of professional baseball.

The first ball that Wyatt Lee sent over the plate was a strike.

Commencing Saturday, April 26, will have direct information (daily) from the New York Times on two home runs. For full particulars address Box 283, Times office. All communications strictly confidential.

SECRETARY LONG A POOR TIMEKEEPER

day night aboard the Dolphin will probably rank as the liveliest in the history of the Roosevelt administration. The wild mazes of the Virginia reel, in which Secretary Long is reported to have become confused, was one of the least exciting events of the evening.

Although the first game was won by the Englishmen yesterday, the Americans had the best of the argument all day yesterday and today, and the result, therefore, was not a surprise. So far the Englishmen have won two matches, lost one, and drawn one. They have won twelve and one-half games and the Americans eleven and one-half games. A summary of the contest follows:

ON THE DIAMOND.

And "Wild Bill" lasted but one inning.

Jimmy Collins did not look at all happy when he struck out in the seventh inning.

The action of the Washington magnate in retaining legal protection for his ex-Philadelphia ball tossers is creating a great deal of favorable comment around the country in American League circles, and an equal amount of consternation in the camp of the enemy.

Carl Ludgren, captain of the University of Illinois baseball team, has been signed by Seale. Ludgren, who is a pitcher, will join the Recruits after he graduates in June.

Shortstop Shagart, who drew a blacklist from Ban Johnson last year for his assault on Umpire Hixwell, is captaining the San Francisco team, and playing in a way to open the eyes of the California fans. He is playing at third.

President Freedy Postal was again an occupant of the Senatorial bench. He positively beamed when the Senators made their killing in the sixth inning.

Del came very near to landing a homer in the fifth. His drive to center came within a foot or so of bouncing over the fence. He drew two of them as it was.

A little incident that happened before the game on Thursday may possibly explain to a certain extent why Carlick was so easy for the Beaneaters. He was finding his locker when a hammer that he was using slipped and struck his middle finger on his left hand. The blow tore the nail

The team from Fort Myer was defeated by the team representing St. Elizabeth's Asylum yesterday by a score of 19 to 15. The contest was a little rough, in which there was plenty of shoving. Neither of the pitchers received anything like good support, hence the large score. The teams were evenly matched. The score:

RICE CHESS TROPHY WON BY AMERICANS

Yankee Players Succeed in Defeating Oxford-Cambridge Team.

BOSTON, April 25.—The Rice chess trophy, which has been staying in England these last three years, carefully kept by Oxford and Cambridge, will have to make a journey across the Atlantic, for after two days' hard fighting the Americans won the match by four and one-half to one and one-half games.

Chicago Lowers the High School Figures Nicely.

DUFFEY EQUALS BEST WORK

College Contest Won by Pennsylvania Team From Harvard, and New Time Is Scored Also—Washington Third in School Championship—Other Events.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—The relay races on Franklin Field today were productive of some fast time, notwithstanding the strong wind that blew a cloud of dust across the field. The South Division High School of Chicago lowered the high school relay record 3.1-5 seconds, running the distance in 3:35. The two-mile college relay, which Pennsylvania won from Harvard, was also run in 1-5 second under record time. The one-mile record was also broken.

Duffey, of Georgetown, twice equaled the world's record of 9.4-5 seconds for the 100 yards, and won that event from Blair, of Chicago.

ROOT KNOCKS OUT STIFF.

Western Heavyweight Champion Ends Fight in Second.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Jack Root, the undisputed Western heavyweight champion, knocked out Billy Stiff before the Chicago Athletic Club in less than two rounds.

In the first round both men were cautious, and there were few hard blows struck. In the second round Root feinted once or twice, drawing Stiff out, and then landed as clean a knockout blow on the jaw as has been seen in this city in many a day.
